Watkins of Obio and Andrew Jackson of Houston, Tex. Each in turn withdrew his name after the first ballot. Mr. Houston creating enthusiasm by the statement that he would rather receive the lowest vote in the prohibition convention than the highest in either the demoor republican conventions.

Chafin Won't Take Nomination Again. The leading candidates against Mr. Walkins for vice president were Mr. Emerson of California and George E. Stockwell of New York. Both of the candidates made brief speeches. Mr. Chafin said he regarded the nominations as the greatest political honor bestowed upon any man this year. He thanked the convention for his second nomination and promised not to stand for a third one.

More Money if Name is Changed. After the nomination of officers the convention was forced to rush its business to a conclusion as many of the delegates were leaving for their homes. Because of this the proposal to change the name of the party was not taken up for general discussion and action. A. J. Orem of Massa-chusetts in a brief speech promised to piedge more money to the campaign fund should the name be changed.
"I believe we could make the campaign fund double if we should adopt a new name," said Mr. Orem.

THE AVENUE OF OPPORTUNITY

If you have anything to sell, if you are dependent upon the public for your business, if you have a special advantage to offer or a storeful of goods for inspection no matter what the line, there is only one solution to the problem-advertise. Advertising proves its own value in every line of business. Intelligent and persistent publicity is bound to bring results, with the steady placing of the message before the newspaper readers.

That it is suited to all lines, even the banking business is illustrated by the fact that in eightuen months a trust company in New York city increased its deposits from $124,000.000 to $178,000,000, a gain of $54,000,000. This is a well-known institution of course but it was not too well known so that advertising would not make it better known. It helped that institution just as surely as it will help a less prominent bank or any business. In a Southern Michigan city a new bank was started where they were three others. It advertised, something the others had not done and in less than nine years had more deposits than the others combined. The others followed and the deposits of the city trebled within a period of ten years while the population increased but a third.

Three problems in children's work were presented; administration, connection of the library with schools, connection of the library with the community. The children's librarian should ask the question, "Are the boys and girls reading on a dead level, Barbour, Tomlinson and Alcott, and never rising above the level of their daily rising above the level of their daily experience?" When a girl says that she is tired of reading girls' stories and wants semething different and then she comes to enjoy the life of Florence Nightingale, Helen Keller and even the life of Alice Freeman Palmer, then the librarian may knew there work is worth while. The worst mountes of the library today are those carents who buy Alger books and Elsie books for their children, Because the
